Think Hands And No KisseS

The Lullaby Trust is a UK (United Kingdom) charity that aims to prevent sudden infant death syndrome (SIDS) and provide support to bereaved families. The charity has recently launched a Newborn Infection Prevention Campaign to raise awareness about the importance of preventing infections in young babies. Newborn babies have immature immune systems, infections which are mild to older children and adults can be life-threatening for new babies.

A recent survey conducted by The Lullaby Trust found that 54% would let friends and family kiss their newborn baby, unaware of the risk of serious infection. It also found that 63% of new and expectant parents would feel uneasy asking visitors not to touch their baby, worried that they would offend someone, hurt their feelings, or be labelled an overprotective parent. With this in mind, the campaign offers a range of easy-to-access resources and practical tools for parents and carers to support their conversations with visitors, without feeling awkward.

The campaign encourages visitors to follow the THANKS guidance:

Think Hands And No KisseS

1. Wash your hands before you touch a baby.
2. Do not kiss a baby unless you are their parent or main carer – and even then, avoid kissing if you have an infection or are unwell.
3. Do not visit a baby if you are ill, have recently been ill or have an infection. This includes colds, active cold sores as well as diarrhoea and vomiting illnesses.

The Lullaby Trust has created a new page on their website for parents, covering this vital information in more detail. You will also find infection prevention posters and red book inserts which are free to download and links to further information about infections and spotting the signs. To raise awareness on this vital issue, The Lullaby Trust has teamed up with Annabel Karmel MBE, who sadly lost her daughter, Natasha, at three months old due to infection. You can read more about the campaign and access further resources here: Newborn Infection Prevention Campaign - The Lullaby Trust

The following are the red book inserts which are available to download and print off on the website which include all the campaign's key messages - Red Book 2 \(lullabytrust.org.uk\):

SPOTTING INFECTIONS IN BABIES

Produced in consultation with The British Paediatric Allergy, Immunity and Infection Group, an affiliated speciality group of the Royal College of Paediatrics and Child Health (RCPCH).

It can be difficult to tell when your baby has an infection, as infections can cause lots of different signs and symptoms and babies can't say how they feel. It is important to trust your instincts and, if you feel that something is 'not quite right' with your baby, seek help from your midwife, health visitor, GP, NHS 111 or visit an emergency department if you are very worried.

These are some important signs and symptoms to look for that might mean your baby has an infection:

If your baby...

is difficult to wake appears floppy is irritable and will not settle has a mottled or blotchy appearance has difficulty breathing, is breathing fast or noisily, is 'sucking in' under their ribs or is grunting or wheezing has a rash, or sores/blisters on the skin, eye or inside the mouth, or around their tummy button has a high or low temperature (above 38° or below 36°), or their body is cold to the touch

has a high-pitched or abnormal cry

...they might have a serious infection

You should also keep an eye on your baby's wet nappies and feeding and speak to a health professional if they have had fewer than 2-3 wet nappies in a 24-hour period.

Remember, you know your baby best so you are well placed to notice if there are changes in their wellbeing or behaviour. It is important to get help if you are concerned that your baby might have an infection.

Key information to tell your health professional

Produced in consultation with The British Paediatric Allergy, Immunity and Infection Group, an affiliated speciality group of the Royal College of Paediatrics and Child Health (RCPCH).

If you think your baby might have an infection, it is important that health professionals have all the information they need to help them treat your baby. You need to let them know if any of the following apply to you:

If you had any illnesses during pregnancy, such as flu-like symptoms

If you or your baby have tested positive for Group B Strep

If you missed any routine vaccinations in pregnancy, such as COVID-19, influenza or pertussis vaccines

If you developed chicken pox 7 days before or after your baby's birth or someone else with chicken pox has been in contact with your baby

If you, or anyone that has met your baby, has an active cold sore

If you are breastfeeding and have blisters or a rash on your breast/nipple

If you have ever had a genital herpes infection, even if you don't currently have symptoms

If you have had sexual contact with a new partner during pregnancy, particularly in the third trimester

If you experienced symptoms of sexually transmitted disease during pregnancy

If you travelled overseas during pregnancy

Make sure that you tell the health professionals caring for your baby if any of these apply to you, even if they don't ask.

Having this information may give them clues as to why your baby is unwell.

ALWAYS REMEMBER TO:

- Wash your hands before touching a baby
- Only kiss a new baby if you are their parent or main carer

Raising awareness of Developmental Language Disorder (DLD) for international DLD day

Stoke Speaks Out and Children's Speech and Language Therapy in MPUFT have been raising awareness of Developmental Language Disorder (DLD) for international #DLDDay which was on Friday 20th October 2023.

Developmental Language Disorder is a hidden but common disability that affects 1 in 14 people causing difficulties understanding and using language for no known reason.

Speech and language therapists work with children with DLD providing assessment, diagnosis, therapy, and advice. One of a speech and language therapist's most important roles is educating parents, carers and teachers about the strategies and support they can put in place to help children with DLD to thrive. That is why the speech and language therapy team shared key facts and useful tips on their Facebook page and on X, formerly known as Twitter. They would like everyone to share the posts far and wide to raise awareness of DLD.

The 2023 DLD day theme was DLD Around the World, highlighting that DLD affects people around the world regardless of age, gender, language spoken or ethnicity. Speaking more than one language does not cause DLD. In fact, people with DLD can learn multiple languages. DLD is a neurodevelopmental condition affecting how the brain processes language, so it makes sense that we find it in every country and every language. Raising Awareness of Developmental Language Disorder (RADLD), the peak body who coordinate international DLD day are advocating for increased recognition and support for people with DLD around the world.

"People with DLD are 6 times more likely to suffer from anxiety and 3 times more likely to have clinical depression. They are also at significant risk of struggling with reading, spelling, and mathematics. Although DLD is a common condition affecting many areas of life, people with DLD are unlikely to receive access to services," said Stephen Parsons, Chairperson of RADLD.

Visit the Stoke Speaks Out news page, Facebook page or Twitter page to learn more about DLD. Developmental Language Disorder Day #DLDDay, now in its seventh year, is celebrated annually around the world with more than 40 countries involved.

HOW MUCH SUGAR IS IN OUR DRINKS?

It's recommended that children under 4 avoid any foods with added sugar or sugar-sweetened drinks.

Children are having over 2 times more sugar than is recommended, with half of it coming from snacks and sugary drinks. This summer, two members of the 0—19 community development team spent the day at Lichfield Family Fun Day to raise awareness about these hidden sugars and to talk to people about how they could make healthier swaps by using the free NHS Food Scanner App.

Our stall included a display with bags of sugar attached to some popular drink labels to show exactly how much sugar was hidden in them.

Many parents/ carers were surprised to see that some of the drinks which they thought were healthy choices, such as smoothies and milkshakes, contained worrying amounts of sugar. For example, a well-known brand of smoothie contains 15 grams of sugar in 150ml, which is almost the maximum daily amount recommended for a 4-6 year old and a small-sized fast-food restaurant milkshake contains 30 grams of sugar! This is the maximum daily amount recommended for children aged 11 and over!

How to cut down on sugar:

Even if you know what to look out for when it comes to sugary food/ drinks, it can be difficult to know what to do instead.

Here are three quick tips to start you off:

Fruit juice only counts as 1 of your 5 A Day, no matter how much or how many different types you have. So limit it to no more than 150ml a day – and keep it to mealtimes, as juice can cause tooth decay.

A quarter of the sugar kids have every day comes from sugary drinks. Swap soft drinks, juice and flavoured milks for water, lower-fat milks and diet, sugar-free, or no added sugar drinks.

The effects of too much sugar

Too much sugar is bad for a child's health as it can lead to the build-up of harmful fat on the inside that we cannot see.

This fat can cause weight gain and serious diseases like type 2 diabetes, heart disease, and some cancers.

Having too much sugar can also lead to painful tooth decay – every 10 minutes, a child in England has a tooth removed in hospital.

Use the free NHS Food Scanner app to see how much sugar is in your favourite food or drink, and get suggestions for healthier swaps!

“Let’s Talk About SPEED” Road Safety Week 2023

Road Safety Week is an annual campaign, organised by Brake, the road safety charity. It is an annual event that takes place in the UK which aims to raise awareness about road safety. This year, Road Safety Week will be held from 19th – 25th November 2023 and the theme for the week is “Let’s talk about SPEED”.

Why is Road Safety Week important?

- Every year, more than 1600 people are killed on UK roads and more than 25,000 people suffer serious injuries.
- Every day, six children are killed or seriously injured on UK roads.
- Road crashes are devastating events for families, friends, and communities.
- Road Safety Week gives us all the opportunity to remember people killed or injured on UK roads and raise funds to help Brake care for road victims and campaign for safe roads for all.

Five people die on UK roads every day. One in four fatal crashes involve someone driving too fast which is why Brake want to start a conversation about why speed is such a crucial factor for road safety, and what can be done to make the roads safer for everyone.

We will be posting on our social media across the week to help raise awareness, so keep a look out. If you are interested in getting involved in Road Safety Week this year too, then you will find everything you need to take part here:

Resources for everyone | Brake

A child’s risk of being injured on the roads when walking or cycling increases as they gain independence, which is why it is important for us to think about the steps we can all take. Far more young people are knocked down and hurt than younger children (ROSPA, 2023). Peer pressure and distractions, such as mobile phones, can also cause young people to take risks and behave in unsafe ways around roads. You can find more information about talking to children and young people about road safety here:

VAPING

Our School Nurses are seeing many young people lately who want advice about vaping. Vaping is a popular trend among young people, but it is not without risks. According to the NHS, vaping is less harmful than smoking, but it is not risk-free. Most vapes contain nicotine, which is an addictive substance. This makes vaping more risky for young people than for adults, as evidence suggests that the developing brain is more sensitive to its effects.

Parents, carers, and anyone working with children can make sure young people understand the health facts about vaping and know about vaping and the law so they can make an informed choice. Vaping exposes users to some toxins, and we don't yet fully understand what the risks might be in the long term <https://www.nhs.uk/better-health/quit-smoking/vaping-to-quit-smoking/young-people-and-vaping/>.

Here are some facts that you can tell young people about vaping:

- Vaping is a way for adults to stop smoking – not something for non-smokers, especially children and young people to try.
- Most vapes contain nicotine, which is an addictive substance that can be hard to stop using once you have started.
- The brain is still developing well into our mid-twenties which makes it more sensitive to addictive substances and exposure to chemicals.
- In the UK, it is against the law to sell nicotine vaping products to under-18s or for adults to buy them on their behalf.
- Some disposable vapes on sale are illegal and don't meet UK quality and safety regulations.
- Non-nicotine vapes don't have the same regulations as nicotine vapes and are not without risk.
- Vaping can make some illnesses, such as asthma, worse.

If you suspect that your child/ young person is vaping, it's important to understand what it is and what the risks are so you can talk to them about it. It is helpful to bear in mind that most children and young people do not vape or smoke on a regular basis or for a long period of time, but they might try it.

Here are some steps that you can take if you find out that your child is vaping:

1. Stay calm and approach the situation with an open mind.
2. Talk to your child about the risks of vaping and why it's important to quit.
3. Listen to your child's concerns and offer support.
4. Set a good example by taking care of your own health.
5. Make your house smoke-free and vape-free.
6. Keep all vaping supplies and refill materials in child-resistant packaging out of the reach of children.

Feedback Time!

It's time again to celebrate all the wonderful work going on within the Families' Health and Wellbeing 0-19 Service!

Here are some of the things that parents/ carers, young people, and colleagues have said about....

Our 0-19 Health Visiting and School Nursing Teams

It is good to talk about my family and my problems She listens to me and sometimes we have a laugh.

She listened to me showed me she cared about my situation and helped me to look at strategies to try and help myself. They support me to seek extra support talking therapy

She was very nice and friendly and I really liked talking to her -it would be good to see her more often as my school nurse

She was personable, approachable and informative. I'd feel so comfortable with seeing her/discussing matters with her again.

The lady was very understanding. She didn't judge me.

She was interested in me and my child. She made the appointment fun for him as he was nervous and uncertain.

She (HV) was lovely, talkative and confident, she got dad involved in weighing and measuring baby which made dad feel a part of the appointment and she gave some very valuable advice. Didn't feel like I was being judged she's just answered any questions without hesitation.

Our 0-19 Hub and ChatHealth Text Messaging Service

Very helpful and attentive.
Really put my mind at ease

Spent time with me on the phone, I didn't feel like you were trying to rush the conversation. You sent helpful links and gave plenty of good advice.

Very thorough and took the time to try and get to the bottom of the issue, lots of options of support were given to try.

Think the service is amazing and helpful

Felt as though I could ring anytime, I was given plenty of time to voice my concerns about my little girl and I was given evidence based advice to help and inform me.

Only a quick call (which was good as having a 19month old, everything needs to be done quickly) But even though the call was quick during the call I received a lot of information. The lady I spoke to was lovely, very friendly, kind and encouraging. Giving me advice on the steps I needed to take and what I should look at.
